

How to play ready, steady, go games

Ready, steady, go games are great for encouraging eye contact, speech and social interaction in young children or those with communication difficulties.

Find a game or toy that the child loves.
We will use blowing bubbles as an example.

Make sure you have the child's attention by holding up the bubble wand. Say 'ready, steady....' and pause

Wait for the child to respond by saying 'go', looking at you or reaching out. You then say 'go' and blow the bubbles
